Itemized Budget

Costs are for eight nights in Copiapo, see itinerary for further detail.

Travel –*Flights to and from Santiago

~$1400 per person

5 Undergraduates – SGA funding requested - $7000

6 Graduates – GSA funding requested – otherwise personal funds.

3 Students from University of Nevada, Reno – Funding reliant on their own chapter

Flights to Copiapo

$65 per person

Personal funding

Transportation while in Chile

Bus Pass - $15 for the week per person

The SEG student chapter has applied for national funding to support this but otherwise personal funds will be used. Busses can be used for navigation to all sites except for one, in which case taxis will be used.

Hotels

Hostel rate - $40 per room – sleeps 3

$169 per night, for eight nights and 11 people (not including UNR students) - $1170 total.

Last time we ran an international course, the students from UNR covered their own costs and our national chapter granted us $1200 from the Stewart Wallace fund for student field courses.

We have already gathered our materials for the Stewart Wallace fund application (which will be reviewed at the end of October) and are very optimistic about our chances for funding.

As such, we hope to use national chapter funds to cover hotels and transportation. We ask only that the SGA cover undergraduate travel costs as they can be prohibitively high.

To the members of the Senate,

The SEG chapter at NMT would like to request travel funding for a trip to Chile. The itinerary is attached (see below). This funding will support flights for five undergraduates: Jack Sterrett, Ethan Haft, Sarah Bennett, Sharon Minnix, and Alison Mertz. This trip is a valuable experience as the porphyry and epithermal deposits in Chile are world-renowned. This course will also give students the opportunity to network with professionals in a hands-on environment.

The field course to Chile will take place between the 27th of January and the 5th of February, 2023. 14 students are expected to participate, including students from the University of Nevada, Reno. The course will visit three mines and review exploration drill core from three other districts, covering six mines and properties in total.

Our SEG chapter has requested funding from our national chapter which will support funding for housing and transportation expenses. However, flight costs can be prohibitive for many students who wish to participate in educational field courses, and these costs are not covered by grants at the national level or department funding at NMT. This is why we have requested funding from the SGA.

Thank you for your consideration,

The SEG student chapter
